

Sylvia Masson is a French veterinarian, specialist in behavioral medicine (ECAWBM diplomate).

She exercises her activity as a founder associate of Clinique de la Tivollière since 2008, near Grenoble. After ten years of general practice combined with behavioral consultations, she is now exercising her activity exclusively in veterinary psychiatry.

She is the author of many international publications on the topic of shock collars, and treatments and outcomes of psychiatric care of dogs and cats.

She is regularly giving lectures to dog trainers, veterinarians and nurses and is also an author of several books.